Visible Supply of Corn

The reductions in the visible supply of corn was over 2,000,000 bushel: buil the remaining supply looks small only when compared to last year, when it was abnormally large. Receipts of 395 cars indicated that old corn is still being shipped in freely, and the premium at which July corn is selling here above July corn at Kanasa City is much better than the shipping basis.

What may happen in July corn in particularly uncertain because of the bitter professional struggle in that future. But any great development of strongth in the other fatures during the rest of this month is likely to meet Sink with willing.

It is presumed, and said, that corn is way oversold. There is not much in the action of the market to support that theory. All the futures, including the July, act more as if they were overbought

Ideal Corn Weather

The weather is ideal for the corn crop, and every week that passes from now on makes less and less likely dame age to it during growth. Late in August there may come a time when there will he talk of injury from an early frost, but even that seems less likely to threaten this year, than ordinarily, because the crop is eatly. Long before that time comes the market will have moved into the period when it is regarded as a sale by those who follow the calendar in their trad-

To Steve Wilson, formerly of this sity, goes the record for the most faithful attendance at the Cleveland X. M C. A. night school, according to a story of his record which appeared in a recent Issue of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Wilson, who held the record in a group of 3,000 students and who graduated last June, did not miss a session of the night school in six years. On only one night in the six years, the

Cleveland paper says, Wilson missed his usual class because it was necessary for him to visit the office of the Cleve-

Oily Grease on Garage Floors Found Deadly Enemy of Rubber

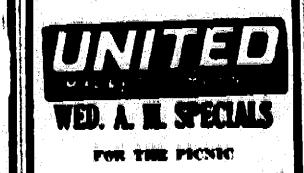

MOST BLOW-OUTS CAUSED IN THIS WAY

Simple New Method Now Recommended for Preventing Tires from Rotting Away While Cars Stand Idle in the Garage

Oil is the enemy of rubber. It rots the best tires. Blow-outs are its offsprings. If you have ever changed a tire on a boiling hot summer day, you know what blow-outs mean. Also the price of a new tire, 3000 to 5000 miles too soon, is more than annoying.

The only sure, simple way to keep your garage floor free from oily drippings is to take 5 minutes (whenever necessary) to swab out these spots with an old broom and a solution of Red Seal Lye and water—one can of lye to a gallon of water. Use Red Seal Lye because it is $7% pure lye - by far the purent, quickest, most economical lye made. It melts away grease like snow from a hot stove. Stop at your grocer's and pick up

Ti's a little early to be thinking of football but Rosalie has best acquired a novelty in honlery which brings to mind notominal gridiron contests. Penelope agrees that it's quite chie, but we see that she has also acquired a movel design on her hose. The diamond effeet accentuates the slenderness of the heel. Those which Resalle is wearing are also very new, having the narrow heel which is only about one-fourth the usual width.
